Hints on Buying and Caring for Harness

The Care of Harness

The Harness is now home, and let us consider the care of it so that we may get the maximum value for our money. Some all their harness as soon as they get it, but this is unnecessary as it will not last longer than a week if you do this.

Now, however, the leather part stays, and this grease will not wear away to come off until the harness is exposed to the hot sun.

Every stable should have a separate harness room if at all possible—the one condition of having the harness behind the horses is entirely wrong.

The straps are not only likely to be strained by the horses, but the harness is exposed to the injurious sun rays. The harness room should be dry, and if possible, a little cool. Hanging the harness is most important; it should always hang at right angles to the balance of the harness. If the harness is hung on the wall by the top or bottom horse strap there is a twist and strain on the tugs that is bound to rip them. If the harness is hung horizontally, the leather part of the harness will be strained and from both straps on a 2x1, about 30 inches long. Some hang their harness horizontally as it sits on the horse, but this takes up much space.

Collars should always be buckled up soon as removed from the horse's shoulders, this prevents breaking at the throat, and has a tendency to make the collar last a year or two longer.

Keep Your Harness in Repair.

The very best harness will occasionally get out of repair, and the old adage, "A stitch in time saves nine," is still true. As soon as a tear is detected, mend it. If possible, be stitched. If this is done valuable time may be saved and accidents also avoided.

Every winter the harness should go to the harness shop to be thoroughly overhauled and repaired. I used to do this work on the farm, but now that I am retired, I don't think that does not pay.

This is an age of machinery, and the average harness maker will do more in a day (and do it better), than your "handy man" will in a couple of weeks, and the "handy man" will be paid for his work at a much higher rate than he was when he was working.

It might be well to have the harness well scrubbed and oiled after it is repaired, unless your saddler has a harness dipping tank, in which event he will do the oiling much better and cheaper than you can do it yourself, and the leather part should be washed before it is repaired.

Above all, don't plug your harness full of iron rivets and baling wire. This rusts and cuts the leather. Sometimes when a fifty-cent repair bill is saved a $5.00 is spent. Good linens thread is the best material to repair the leather and should be properly used. Rivets are of use in some places to reinforce stitching, but should never be used to take its place, especially in a splice.

If I find it very good economy to have plenty of extra harness parts on hand to replace a small tear, I do it, but, as far as I am concerned, I would rather take to town on my next trip. Consequently, my harness is always in first class shape, and the cost of repairing is very little. When a set of harness gets old and the repairs frequent, I sell it or trade it in on a new set. A set of half worn harness brings almost as much as a new set.

If these suggestions are always carried out you will find that your harness is the cheapest equipment on your farm, and will give more service for the money invested than almost anything else you can buy.

Now, go for the gopher and the grasshopper—they have no friends.

INCORRIGIBLE DEAL IS OFF

Hon. Geo. Headley Says the Government is Not Considering the Subject

The Calgary Herald reports Hon. George Headley, Minister of Agriculture, as stating that the government is not considering using the Gleichen and Youngstown schools of agricultural for incorrigible boys and girls, and that the school is "financially and physically健全的".

He added that these schools should be used for that purpose. Further than to deny this statement, Hon. Mr. Headley declined to comment.

This is good news for both Gleichen and Youngstown, the latter being as hostile as Gleichen to their school being used for any such purpose. The town council of Youngstown were quite indignant at the proposal and telegraphed to the government for the information of the Herald—

On Saturday, April 18, Youngstown officials reported to the minister of agriculture that the school was used as a "bait" for incorrigible boys and girls. The Mayor and civic officials of Youngstown were greatly taken aback at this proposal on whose subject they had printed.

On last Wednesday, the Gleichen Call, a weekly newspaper printed at Gleichen, gave vent to a protest on this subject, under a big headline, "Elwin Thinks, Mayor Adams," a copy of which was forwarded to his office.

"Our proposal seems to be raising a lot of excitement," was the only comment the mayor made Friday morning, when he received a copy of the Gleichen paper which, among other things, stated that if the mayor sent any inquiries to that town, he would be asked to return them to the front of the train that he can ship."

The article concludes by quoting in full the remarks in the last issue of the Call.

The statement credit to Hon. Mr. Headley is particularly gratifying to

CORRESPONDENCE

Editor The Call:

Thank you, Mr. Editor, in anticipation of your column, I might raise a question.

Why do our school children attend school from 9 to 4 and then have to bring home a pile of night work?

If a child plays an hour or so it is a rush before bedtime to get the work done, and then have to go to sleep early in the evening after spending practically all day at school. I have a girl 15 and one 10, both home-workers, and I am decidedly against it, knowing as I do by many years of experience that it is wholly responsible for the lack of reserve energy and strength needed when it comes to bearing children and the general loss of tone in early maturity. Many are the graves today that the parents would not bequeath if there had not been too much grind just before the grave.

Grasshopper Menace

BY FRANK A. SELBONINE

Do you realize what this means? How many persons in Alberta have ever been through a real serious locust plague?

I doubt very much if there are one hundred persons in the vast prairie country who have any idea of what might happen this year in the southern portion of Alberta.

There are probably a few of our American settlers who formerly belonged to Kansas, or some other state, who can tell us what can transpire in the tremendous swarms of locusts which closed them out many years; but I do not think there is anyone else outside of these few.

Now this article is not meant to alarm any farmer in Alberta, it is simply to warn the citizens of Alberta who know what the real facts are in regard to egg deposits, the rest of the population is spared. Fortunately the Greenfield Government has come to life, and at the last sitting of the legislature, they passed an act entitled "An Act for the examination of Agricultural Pests" and voted $70,000.00 to fight it this year.

Now, mark you, this menace has been constantly on the increase since 1918, the first dry year after the wet one, about the same time the locusts ate the banks of rivers and small streams, because of the dry spell. They migrated to the growing fields of grain which provided them with a abundance of food, succulent feed, and as they were very numerous, they did a great deal of damage naturally, but, they stayed there; and finding the hard soil along the roadsides and fence lines, their liking for breeding grounds was, they deposited their eggs which were fully hatched in 1919. Last year, however, they laid their eggs in the sunflowers of that year, all over southern Alberta.

1920 was the first bad year in a few localities; but outside of one or two municipalities, unfortunately, very few were able to check them. Last year, practically all the sunflowers in southern Alberta from the international boundary as far north as Olds, and east to the Saskatchewan boundary, was infested with billions of locusts and the egg deposit was enormous.

Even as far back as the spring and summer of 1920, the writer saw in his locality (roughly speaking about a township in extent) locusts so thick that on a rock about a mile long, there were over three hundred. It was necessary to wait to see six on a blade of wheat, and they cleaned, absolutely, a field sixty acres in extent, in less than ten days.

Lost Cities

Finding Incredible Ruins of an Ancient Civilization

Unknown cities and civilizations as the Journal of the Royal Geographical Society you can have but little idea of the number of people who are occupied in this search.

In the sands of Egypt, the jungles of Central Africa, the jungles of Ceylon and Malaya, and the tropics of South America, the lost cities and civilizations are constantly at work delving for the relics of lost civilizations.

During the last year, the task naturally seems to be one that but that matters are gradually becoming more spiced up as the searching work is again in progress.

Wonderful finds have been made in the past, but they are still being discovered. In the future is there hope to bring, for there are treasures of the past waiting everywhere for the pickers and the excavators.

Take South America, for instance. All over Brazil, from the east coast, right back into the unknown and unchartered interior, there are signs of a race to be found in incredible ruins of an enigmatically ancient civilization.

Here are inscriptions, carvings, drawings, and the like, the like the like letters, but at present quite incomprehensible. Then there is always the possibility that the "stone of the stone" might be discovered giving the clue required for the translation of these writings. And once this was found, the world would be given an amazing history of the great Toltec race, which at an immensely remote period, had built up a civilization of great extent and cultivated great traits of what now appear to be primal power.

Everyone has heard of the vast ruins of Zimbabwe, in Southern Rhodesia, the golden city, which is said to have been built by the Phoenicians.

North of the Zambesi, deep in a mountain unknown land, lies another and even more mysterious city, where massive brickwork and slate pits cut in the solid rock. Though explorers have visited it, little or no sign of life is seen.

In the "Journal of the African Society" for July, 1905, there are some very interesting notes on the lost city which is situated in Southern Nigeria. Some twelve feet beneath the present native town there have been found walls, water tanks, castings in quartz, bronze castings and many other objects, giving proof of the existence of a highly developed and a civilization apparently equal to that of Greece. The natives of today who inhabit this region have no knowledge of the working of iron.

In British Columbia, on the right bank of the Arrow River, and near the Bokan River, south of Karsl, is a long, under ground gallery, 100 feet wide. Here is an immense labyrinth of tunnels and passageways, with houses two stories high, with roofs, windows, stairs, vases, vases and coins have been recovered, but much remains to be done.

Freton is full hot test or partly buried caves, according work for archaeologists for many years to come. No one can tell how far the galleries extend, and the length of each chamber.

It is expected that these monuments, which are to be erected in the Maritimes and Quebec, will be completed before September of this year.

To Help Livestock Industry

Commission and Provincial Departments of Agriculture Will Work Together

The various departments of agriculture of the four western provinces decided upon the formation of a federal department of agriculture for the four provinces.

At the meeting of the ministers of agriculture of the four provinces at Victoria, the work of the department of agriculture was brought to a close.

As a result of the (western) conference, the ministers of agriculture were made looking to the bettering of the livestock industry of Western Canada and decisions were made to work together in this particular endeavor.

In summarized form, these agencies and governments are as follows:

Alberta—Provincial department of agriculture, negotiations with Great Britain and U.S.A. on opening of market for Alberta cattle, general department of agriculture.

Coordinating of shipper interests,冬令供應。

Winter feeding to distributor markets.

Provincial departments of agriculture and co-operative of federal departments of agriculture.

Debtors—Provincial department of agriculture.

Stock shipping days to reduce shrinkage.

Landing charges, through local government, to distributor markets.

Feeding and rust control—Provincial department of agriculture.

All federal and provincial agencies, instructional work respecting production, cost and quality—Federal department of agriculture.

A cooperative attempt is to be immediately undertaken by the federal minister of agriculture, the agricultural departments of each of the four western provinces and all agricultural institutions as well as cattle associations to better the position of the livestock industry of Western Canada on a permanent basis.

The Sabbath is still strongly observed in the Highlands of Scotland where the people believe that it is sinful to walk on the Holy Day except at the church services. While I was there in a Highland village, Mr. Peter Williams in the village, while I was in the church service, went to the door of the house of the minister, the Rev. Mr. Macmillan, and said, "Good day to him." I ventured to say, "Good day to you." He replied, "I am not here for a moment, and then replied, "For the noon to day to speak?" You know the old story of Mahomet and the Mountain—when the Mountain wouldn't come to him, like a sensible man, grabbed his Panama off the hall rack and went to the Mountain—he wanted it bad enough to go after it.

That is precisely the situation today—the Mountain BUSINESS—with you to go—will have to go after it hard. You have one big advantage over the Prophet—to take the going as he found it—you can pay the way with advertising.

Elsewhere in this issue the Town Council orders that every yard in the town be cleaned up by May 20th or earlier if possible. Some may seem rather hard to be bothered with, but there is a thing for man people, but then there are always some who will not do their part to make life worth while living. Let us all get busy and make this the cleanest town in the west. It can be done by a little united effort.

Owing to the present labor situation the Gleichen Women's Institute have given no public entertainments throughout the past winter, but have accomplished a lot of good work for the town and district. Now, however, they are looking forward to the spring to "carry on" their work, and for that reason will give a what's drive in the G.W.W.A. hall on Thursday, April 27th. They hope a good crowd will be in attendance and will endeavor to make it one of the most pleasant drives they have ever given.
